Droughts, Deluges and Dust-devils: 350 years of South-East weather

The talk will be given by well-known local weather expert and broadcaster, Ian Currie.

Ian will take us through several centuries of weather with a focus on the South-East of England, including hailstones bigger than cricket balls, the Straits of Dover blocked with ice and a tornado ripping through Guildford.

2023

Your Committee has been reviewing the ways in which the Society operates and has decided to make a few minor changes for next year.

6 meetings will be held on the first Wednesday of alternate months – starting Wednesday 1 February (another 2.30 meeting).

Extra diary date for you – Thursday 5 January. We are planning a ‘Twelfth Night Tea Party’ at The Chequers Hotel from 2.30pm on that date – something different with which to start the year. Tickets and more details of this and future meetings on the 16th.
